Andrew Billingsley Faculty Award APPLICATION FORM

Due no later than November 1, 2021

The University of South Carolina's Institute for Families in Society and the African American Studies Program are proud to co-sponsor the Andrew Billingsley Faculty Award.

The award pays tribute to the work of Dr. Billingsley, whose extensive body of scholarship has brought important focus to the strength and resilience of African American families. During his tenure at USC, Dr. Billingsley served as the Senior Scholar in Residence at the Institute for Families in Society and as a core faculty member in the African American Studies Program.

The Andrew Billingsley Faculty Award is designed to promote and honor the research, scholarly, and creative activities of a faculty member whose work is focused on some aspect of the African American family. This award, for $2000, will be provided to the winner to support his or her ongoing professional work.

To apply, the applicant must be a research or tenure track faculty member at the USC Columbia campus.

Applications will be accepted through November 1, 2021.

To apply, please submit:

- a completed copy of the application form found on the following pages and
- a letter of support from a faculty colleague or administrator familiar with your work.
